

The backpack school

This is a program that is made to promote multilingualism, and parental education. It also aims at increasing the participation and educational equity.

The backpack, what is it?

The backpack is a program

- To promote the language (s) of the multilingual children,
- For parental education
- To involve the parents in the scholastic day
- To improve the communication between school and the parents at home.

What is in the "Backpack"?

- Available materials to promote the multilingualism of the children,
- Exchange and training for the parents on many educational subjects
- Suggestions for parents to accompany their children competently during the educational process,
- Joy, time, and space for encountering, exchange, and questions,
- Parents' attendants, who support them on the spot

The Group of the Backpack:

The parents meet under the guidance of a multilingual group leader once a week in the school of their children. They try to make together activities that they can carry out with their children at home – with the use of their native language. Parents will experience throughout the simple exercises and games how to easily promote the language development of their children at home. In addition, they will have trustfully the opportunity to build up confidence and to share their educational topics and to get support for their children. Thus and above all, you will be able to expand your personal language skills.

The School:

The school takes backpack into the school program, i.e., the language promotion and the cooperation with parents will be a part of the educational work of the College. There will be an instructive person who will be contacting you, and who is appointed to act as a contact person for the parents. The regular teaching, the native language teaching and the parent education are all correlated in one network.

We cordially invite you to join the backpack group!
